STATE IN HUNT FOR MOTORIST

Highway Commission Calls Conduct of Chauffeur Who Killed Boy Dastardly.

PUTS INSPECTOR ON TRIAL

The State Highway Commission held a special meeting today at which prompt and vigorous measures were taken to throw out a dragnet for the driver of the death automobile which sped away in Dorchester after fatally injuring seven-year-old Louis Sobell.

The commission styled this latest example of criminal recklessness "As dastardly as it is deplorable."

A special inspector was detailed on the case to search for the driver of the car.

The police chiefs of surrounding cities and towns were requested to use particularly prompt and effective measures to round up the death car and the driver if possible.

The commission was greatly stirred at this latest auto tragedy, especially as it comes right on the heels of the new law requiring auto drivers to report to the commission any injury to persons or damage to property.

It happened that Colonel William D. Sohier, chairman of the Highway Commission, sailed yesterday on the Lucania to attend an international road congress in London.

But Commissioners Frank L. Kent of Springfield and James W. Synan of Pittsfield, the two remaining members of the commission, lost no time in acting on the Dorchester fatality.

They met at the commission's offices in good season today, dispatched Inspector Welmert on the search, found that Commissioner O'Meara has his men looking for the auto driver, sent word to neighboring police chiefs, and then gave out a statement.

The statement is from the two com-

THIS is little Louis Sobell, the seven-year-old Dorchester boy who was struck and killed by the speeding motor car of an unidentified autoist, who cowardly raced off without waiting to see what he had done or even trying to aid his tiny victim. The Highway Commission denounces this autoist's action as dastardly.

House Advances Bill on Canal Exposition

Overwhelming Vote Sends It to Third Reading—Foss Denies Opposition.

The House, by an overwhelming vote vote today passed to a third reading the cessive calling for a $250,000 appropria tion for the Massachusetts Panama Pa cific Exposition Commission. All amend ments were rejected.

Governor Foss denied the statement printed in a morning paper that he was opposed to the $250,000 appropriation for the Panama Pacific Exposition.

The morning paper which made the statement has opposed the appropriation. The Governor's denial was brought out in debate by Representative Channing Cox, titular leader of the House, who spoke for the appropriation. The state ment which came from the Governor's office read:

The Governor has noted in one of the morning papers the statement that he is opposed to the bill pro viding for an appropriation for the Massachusetts Commission for the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He wishes to deny such a statement publicly.

The Governor is in favor of an ap propriation of at least $250,000. He believes that the business and com mercial interests of this State would be seriously injured if the Commission wasn't were to fail in taking an ac tive part in the exposition.

He considers it very important for the State to open up new markets in in Alaska, Canada, along the Pa cific Coast, in the Orient, Hawaii and the Philippines. This great in ternational exposition to be held on the Pacific Coast offers us such an opportunity as we have never had, and the Governor believes it is im perative that we take prompt and effective advantag of it.

Representative Cox of Boston, San born of Lawrence and Hathaway of New Bedford fought for the bill. Repre sentative Conway urged an amendment cutting the appropriation to $150,000.

Immigrant Board Named by Foss

MET AT NIGHT AT WOOD'S

Witness Tells of Conference Between Ateaux and Others at Andover.

"PLANT" FOUND NEXT DAY

The story of how William M. Wood and Frederick E. Ateaux went by auto to Mr. Wood's home in Andover the night of January 4th, 1912, for a con ference with other men there, was told on the witness stand today in the Wood Ateaux-Collins trial. The dynamite was found January 20.

The story of the night ride was told by Daniel Mahoney, general man on the Wood estate, and by Charles F. Beldin, the chauffeur who drove the car.

Beldin was also questioned as to Orvat Redding, the chauffeur whom the District Attorney has been hunting for several weeks.

Eleanor T. Harrington and Mary F. Coleman, telephone operators in the Lincoln company's office, were expected to be recalled today before the State closes its case, for a few final questions.

Heard No Talk of Dynamite.

Daniel Mahoney, general man on the Wood estate at Andover, resumed the stand when the trial opened today. He said:

"Mr. Wood, Mr. Ateaux and myself were driven to Andover in the automo bile on the evening of January 19, 1912. We left Mr. Wood's Boston home at No. 21 Fairfield street. At Mr. Wood's home in Andover, there was a conference between Mr. Wood, Mr. Ateaux and other men. I helped prepare a lunch and serve it, and I heard them talking about strike matters.

"I heard no talk of dynamite, however. Mr. Ateaux stayed all night at Mr. Wood's house, and the next morning we drove around to look for Boston at 8 o'clock. Mr. Wood was left at the Shawmut Bank Building and Mr. Ateaux was driven to his office on Purchase street."

Saw Chauffeur Last April.

Angelo P. Bobbs testified that he was the chauffeur on this drive, and corroborated Mahoney's testimony. He was questioned about Arval Redding, the missing chauffeur.

Q.—Did you know Redding? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he employed by Mr. Wood in January, 1912? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you see him last? A.—In March or April at his home on the Wood estate in Andover. I don't know where he is now.

Weeks was thirty-six years old. He was treated by Dr. Friedmann in Post dence. He felt better for a time, she s aid, but then grew worse.

"He turned a dark brown color," said Mrs. Weeks today. "He only gave out an odor like that of a turtle. Then he became paralyzed and couldn't swallow. Then he lost his power of speech."

Mrs. Weeks said she had been told by her husband's physicians that he would have lived at least two years longer and might have taken the turtle serum.

Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann, the Ger man tuberculosis expert, who was at the Rhode Island State Sanatarium at Wa lum Lake, R. I. today, to give a second injection of his "turtle" serum, said that New York purchasing agents are trying to stop the use of the serum through jealousy.

TRIAL REVEALS SECRETS

John Callan O'Laughlin Tells of Significance of Fleet's World Cruise.

COUNSEL IN WORDY CLASH

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 28.—That there was very serious danger of war with Japan during the administration of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as President, and that the Chief Executive met the danger and averted war by sending a fleet around the world, was the statement of John Callan O'Laughlin, a newspaper correspondent in Washington and a commissioner to the Tokio exposition, appointed by President Roosevelt.

"Did you seriously mean there was danger of war with Japan during Roose velt's administration?" asked Attorney Belden, who was cross-examining O'Laughlin.

"There was very serious danger," re plied the witness. "Colonel Roosevelt met that danger, obviously Japan would not start war with the fleet in Pacific waters. We settled the immigration question right then."

Counsel in Clash.

The witness emphasized the word "right." O'Laughlin was asked by At torney Belden if he had been an emis sary to arrange for the reception of Roosevelt by the Pope and the King of Italy, when the Colonel was in Rome.

"I am a Catholic," replied O'Laugh lin.

"That is no reply and I move to have it stricken out," shouted Attorney Belden.

The answer to the question will stand, ruled Judge Flanagan. "And I will add, Mr. Belden, that the court feels that you ought not to be permitted to drive the witness so far as you have."

"I apologize to the court," said Bel den.

The court ordered a recess of ten minutes while the attorneys prepared to argue whether testimony to the effect that reports were published in newspa-

NET CLOSING IN UPON GUILTY MOTORIST, SAYS SUPT. PIERCE

William H. Pierce, superintendent of Boston police, said today:

"The Boston Police Department is sparing no effort to discover the automobilist who killed seven-year-old Louis Sobell. It is safe to say that the net is already closing in on the guilty man.

"It would be better for him if he gave himself up voluntarily before we are certain enough of his identity to arrest him. Of course it is a blind hint.

"Still, although the chauffeur was driving the machine so swiftly that it was impossible for those who saw the accident to read the license number, some description of the car was obtained. Moreover, it is almost impossible for an automobile to inflict fatal injuries in that way without carrying off some traces on the car or in the running gear."

COUSIN OF BOY KILLED BY AUTO JUST ESCAPES

ministers, jointly, and is as follows:

"The Highway Commission has today assigned Paul H. Welner, one of its special investigators, to the case of Louis Sobell, the boy who was killed in Dorchester last night.

"Police Commissioner O'Meara is already cooperating with this department, as he has in the past, and the police of the different Boston stations are endeavoring to fix the identity of the car, driver and owner.

"This particular case appears as dastardly as it is deplorable.

"While the chiefs of police in neighboring towns are generally prompt in reporting accidents and in instituting investigations, the commission has requested a speedy and prompt investigation and report in this case.

Auto drivers and owners know the law thoroughly and the penalty imposed for speeding away after they have injured anybody.

"If necessary the commission will place its entire force of investigators upon this case.

Meanwhile, the commission will welcome any information from citizens that would lead to the identity of the car or its driver.

Louis Sobell was struck on Talbot avenue by a black touring car, containing only the chauffeur. The driver put on more power and sped away without stopping to see what harm he had done. The little boy died in the City Hospital a few hours later, while police and citizens were vainly trying to find the cowardly driver of the death car.

The tragedy was all the more pitiable because Louis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sobell, moved from Phillips street, in the crowded West End, to No. 25 Browning avenue, Dorchester, only three months ago because they thought their two boys, Louis and Hyman, would be safer from automobiles and other vehicles in the suburban district.

Killing Denounced as Brutal.

The killing of Louis Sobell was denounced today as one of the most brutal of any of the cases of reckless automobiling which have stirred the community in the past few months.

The man in the car was driving at high speed, estimated from forty to sixty miles an hour. Descending a grade on a street bordering a public park just at dusk, he drove straight at a group of children without sounding his horn.

Hurling the foremost child to one side the driver sped along, without even trying to find out if he had done any damage. It seemed to the few adult spectators who were in the neighborhood, though the autoist must have driven all the faster, because some men who gave chase in another automobile were outdistanced so quickly that they could not get even a glimpse of the number plate.

The Dorchester police took up the search through the evening and orders were sent to all stations to watch for the death car. But the description of the car was so meagre—a black touring car with one man in it—that the search was practically hopeless.

But the police kept up their hunt for the car and driver today, with the metropolitan park police keeping watch as well for any car whose appearance and movements would seem to fit the case.

It was not the driver's fault that he did not kill more than one child.

As it was, Mollie Cornblatt, the six-year old cousin of the slain boy, had a narrow escape from death.

Just as the car swooped down and struck Louis Sobell, Mollie, who was close behind him, jumped back just in time to avoid being hit.

Then Mollie ran to the side of the unconscious Louis and tried to get him to speak. Then she tried to pick him up. Then she even tried to drag him to his home nearby. Failing in these, the terrified little girl ran across Talbot avenue to her own home on Browning avenue and screamed to her mother that "Louis is killed!"

Returning from Park.

Louis Sobell was killed while returning with Mollie Cornblatt and four or five other children from Franklin Field.

Mollie is the daughter of Mrs. Sarah Cornblatt, sister of Louis' mother. The Cornblatts live at No. 38 Browning avenue, nearly opposite the Sobell home at No. 35.

The Sobell house is nearly at the junction of Browning and Talbot avenues. Wales street also comes in there.

After supper Louis Sobell, Mollie Cornblatt and other children went across Talbot avenue to play in Franklin Field. About dusk they started back home, Louis leading, Mollie close behind and the others following.

Talbot avenue runs by one side of Franklin Field at this point. The field is higher than the avenue level and dips down to meet it, with a footpath running along that side of the avenue.

The machine whizzed around the corner and struck the child. In falling Pauline hit her head on the roadway with considerable force. Her mother carried her daughter home in her arms.

Burns went to the police station and reported the accident.

STRIKE SURE UNLESS FOSS 'SENDS WORD'

The Conference Committee, representing the 1,200 Foss employes at the Sturtevant Blower Works and the Becker Milling Company plants at Hyde park, told the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation today that the men would probably go on strike tomorrow unless Governor Foss gives them "some definite word." The attention of the State Board was today called to the impending strike by Mayor Fitzgerald, who asked that an investigation be made in the hope of averting the strike.

With the visit of the conference committee of the employes to the State House to confer with the State Board of Arbitration, it became known the employes of the Mead-Morrison Machine Company of East Cambridge, controlled by Governor Foss, have joined with the Becker and Sturtevant workingmen, bringing the number to 2,000 who are making demands of Governor Foss.

The conference committee requested the Arbitration Board to see if Governor Foss would agree to an arbitration of the differences. The committee also said the employes would accept the board's finding as final if the board would investigate in the hope of preventing a strike. The committee declared it wished to get definite word of the Governor's attitude in time to make a report to the employes at their mass meeting tonight in French's Opera House, Hyde Park.

"Failing to get this definite word," the committee declared, "we don't see how it is possible to keep the men from striking tomorrow."

Miss Scoville Tells of $25,000 Gown

Wedding Dress Will Be of White Silk Brocade and Old Lace.

LONDON, May 28.—Miss Frances Scoville of Kansas, who will become the bride of Walter De Mumm here June 2, gave the AMERICAN details concerning her $25,000 trousseau which she recently purchased in Paris. The wedding dress is of a white soft silk brocade, with small silver taread and a long train, and a long panel of real old lace.

Her favorite evening gowns include a red one of tussar cloth with a heavy beaded top. Another of citronelle, colored with silver and an overdress, while a third is a white chiffon with small ermine bands.

Each has an evening coat to match. The chicest gowns include one in the new colite cloth with a pleated pannier. Another is of chiffon cloth with a valenciennes and tulle waist and a large blue sash.

Tailored suits include a blue serge, short coat with red buttons, also a white corduroy, being fashioned in the shape of a norfolk jacket.

Duchess of Marlboro Drink Cure Favored

Jean Jeton, chef at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, agrees with Her Grace, the Duchess of Marlborough, that a good dinner is a "cure" for the drink habit.

And, with Colonel Roosevelt, he declares: "I have always been a good eater and I never was drunk in my life."

"I like a little light wine with my food as I ago along," said Monsieur Jean today, "but as for getting drunk—Bah! such a thing is out of the question, when a man has all the good food, of sufficient variety, that his system desires.

"A man with proper diet has not the craving for alcoholic liquors that a poor eater would have.

"Good food—and plenty of it—is the best preventive of drunkenness one can have."

Bid Harvard Club Behind the Scenes

E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe are to receive the Harvard Dramatic Club members behind the scenes of the Shubert Theatre Friday night, after the performance. The invitation has been extended to the Dramatic Club by Mr. Sothern to take a section of seats, and afterward to be received in the green room.

Not since Maude Adams received the Dramatic Club at the time of her performances of Chanticler, has the Harvard organization had an opportunity like the present. Some forty men will probably be present from the club.

Society Flocks to Persian Pageant

Society today, in fact all of the 2,000 people who flocked to "Weld," the Lars Anderson Brookline estate, to witness Joseph Lindon Smith's production, "A Diversion in Persia," is busily discussing the affair, which will go down in the history of Boston pageantry as one of the most elaborately staged and brilliantly colored spectacles ever seen. Friends of the Massachusetts Babies' Hospital are rejoicing over the $10,000 realized for the work of the institution.

Home Rule Bill Postponed.

LONDON, May 28.—The House of Commons has reassembled after the Whitsuntide recess. Premier Asquith and Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George have not yet returned from their holiday, so the debate on the Irish Home Rule bill will be postponed for a fortnight.

FEAR OFFENCE TO JAPS, HALT WORK ON FORTS

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Orders, apparently from the men higher up, have deaved the plans of the War Department to place at once the fourteen-inch guns for the defences of Hawaii, the Philippines and the canal zone. The fact seems clear; the reason is unknown.

Three weeks ago officials of the Ordnance Bureau of the War Department informed the AMERICAN that two fourteen-inch guns, with their carriages, were ready for Hawaii and two for the Philippines, and that work was being pushed on the eight fourteen-inch guns that were intended to make the east and west terminals of the canal impregnable.

The War Department counted on the shipment of the guns some months ago. No official about the department has any explanation to offer about the delay. It is broadly hinted that the policy of giving no offense to Japan may be the reason for the apparent lack of energy in the War Department.

In this connection a statement given out at the State Department yesterday is interesting. The American charge d'affaires at Tokio was instructed by this government to tell Japan that no reinforcements were being sent to the Philippines and that only a few artillery had been ordered to Hawaii.

Explain to Japan.

Furthermore, it was explained to Japan, with a touching excess of precaution, that even the few artillerymen were going to Hawaii according to a plan of the War Department formulated a long time ago.

As a matter of fact, the defence of Hawaii, Manila and the Canal Zone were also all determined upon in the same scheme of defence "formulated a long time ago," to which Mr. Bryan so thoughtfully refers.

Japan Still Active.

Army officers and many others are wondering if the scheme of defence of Hawaii "formulated a long time ago" is sufficient excuse to Japanese why the same excuse should not hold good to Japan in the shipment of the big guns to Manila and the Canal Zone, planned also a long time ago.

Meanwhile Japan proceeds with open activity and without apology or explanation to perfect its naval equipment, to add mighty cruisers to its fleet in foreign ports and to purchase merchant vessels and auxiliaries. Upon our side, the great canal still remains defenceless and the watchful naval officials seriously regret that the embargo apparently cannot be raised by the President and the Secretary of State.

Says Right Club Woman Has Children

"The right kind of a club woman is the woman who has dear children." This is what President Mrs. Henry C. Mulligan of Natick told the delegates to the twenty-first annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs in the South Congregational (Unitarian) Church today. There are 47,177 women in the federation.

Mrs. Ruby P. Clark of Maldea said that because of the large number of children who attend theatres and moving picture shows every woman's club ought to have a committee to censor shows.

"We are face to face here with the question of a living wage, for about one-half of the total families reported on have not got it," said Mrs. Clark.

MISS HELEN L. NORTON of Cambridge, who is to marry Joseph M. Kiley of Roxbury, on June 5.

Wedding Secret Fails to Keep

Fellow Clerks in Department Store Surprise Bride-to-Be with Shower.

Because the clerks in the department store, where she works, showered her with wedding presents long before she confessed that she was to be married, Miss Helen L. Norton, of No. 52 Foster street, Cambridge, is wondering who gave away her secret.

"It was rather premature," Miss Norton declares, but now that it's all over, she admits her choice.

Miss Norton will marry Joseph M. Kiley of Roxbury, on June 5, and the young couple will spend their honeymoon in a tour of the Eastern States. Upon their return, they will be at home at No. 182 South Huntington avenue, Brookline. The ceremony will be performed at St. Peter's Church, Cambridge, by the Rev. Fr. Driscoll.

Flagler Estate Is Put at $70,000,000

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., May 28.—The estate of the late Henry M. Flagler, the Southern railway king, in his will now filed, is estimated at between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000, and the bulk of it goes to his widow. Flagler's son, Harry, is to receive 5,000 shares of Standard Oil stock, $135,000 is left to two churches, and J. R. Parrott, in addition to retaining the control of the Florida East Coast Railway as long as he lives, will receive $100,000.

Winthrop Wife Is Refused a Divorce

The divorce libel of Mrs. Ruth F. Libby of Winthrop, daughter of the late Rev. Rufus Frost of New York, against William H. Libby, a Boston contractor, was dismissed by Judge Morton after she had testified that her husband had choked her nine years ago and Libby had denied it.

Costlier "Canned Music."

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Imported "canned music" is to cost more by a decree of the Customs Court that phonographs disks must pay duty of 45 per cent. instead of 35 per cent.

"SEPTEMBER MORN" FACES BOSTON BAN

Miss "September Morn," whom Paris acclaimed and Chicago banned, faces expulsion from Boston.

"It is too suggestive," declares Secretary J. F. Brant of the International Reform Bureau, whose Boston headquarters are at No. 50 Bromfield street.

Police Commissioner O'Meara has promised Secretary Brant to purchase a copy of the picture and show it to a judge of the Municipal Court for a ruling.

Copies of Paul Chabas' famous painting are now being shown in many of the Boston art stores. It represents a beautiful nude girl just about to take her morning dip in the misty lake and has been praised by critics as having delightful artistic qualities.

Chicago has put it under the ban. Is Chicago more "moral" than Boston?

"No, not by any means," replies Mr. Brant.

"This picture may stand for beautiful art, but it is altogether too suggestive. Anyway, it is not the picture to be displayed in the store windows.

"Such pictures are not viewed as art productions by the ordinary passerby. They are easily construed to be an appeal to the lower impulses.

"It could be tolerated in an art gallery, but we object to seeing it paraded before the youth in our streets, and we think that it is well to put it under cover.

"This is no criticism of the art of the picture, which is simply regarded as too suggestive for the public mind."

Francis S. Downs of Baltimore, a brother of the groom, and the Rev. George L. Perrin of Brookline performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marjory. Donald Downs of Dover, a brother of the groom, was best man. Annie Taylor of Brookline was flower girl. A reception followed the wedding. The couple will live in Denver.

Many Book Passage on Liner Cincinnati

New Steamer Will Have Full List on Her Return Trip.

The Hamburg American office in Boston announced today that on her return trip to Hamburg the steamer Cincinnati, now bound for this port on her first voyage under the new schedule, will carry her full quota of passengers and freight.

The Hamburg is carrying less than her capacity on the trip to this port, but bookings today indicated that on her return sailing, June 7, she will have on board every passenger for whom there is accommodation, and will carry about 8,000 tons of freight. This freight will consist largely of grain and provisions. The Cincinnati is bringing 6,000 tons of freight to Boston. She will dock here Saturday morning.

Miss O'Leary is to succeed Mary Boyle O'Reilly.

COUNSEL CLASH OVER O'LOUGHLIN'S TESTIMONY ABOUT ROOSEVELT'S TRIP TO ROME

pers of the country that Colonel Roosevelt drank should be admitted.

The jury was sent from the room while the attorneys argued on the admission of testimony concerning published reports about Colonel Roosevelt's drinking. Attorney Belden said that the defence wished to show that reports that Roosevelt drank was general in 1912.

"We shall show," he said, "that this defendant heard those reports and that this plaintiff did not deny them. Roosevelt has been the most talked of man in this country and if reports of his drinking have been so common, as we shall show, he could not be damaged in any sum by the publication of such a report in a little country paper.

Reputation at Stake.

"The question of Roosevelt's reputation is vital in this case—his reputation in Marquette County, in this country and in the civilized world. In the plaintiff's bill he asserts that his reputation for sobriety is well known throughout the forty-eight States of this country, and that his reputation for sobriety was good before the publication of this article by the defendant.

"Mr. Pound is an able lawyer. No lawyer in Michigan has tried more libel suits than he has. He knew that damages could be increased by reason of malice behind the publication. We will show there was no malice.

"In our answer we set up that there was no malice and that publication was made in good faith, and that defendant had been told and believed that reports of Roosevelt's drunkenness were true.

"Dr. Abbott recognized the existence of such reports and deemed it worth while to answer them in the Outlook.

"Therefore we have a right to show the existence of these reports as showing good faith and absence of malice on the part of this defendant."

"We shall not claim," said Attorney Pound, "any vindictive or punitory damages. We ask only actual damages such as would accrue in the absence of express malice. This is by direction of plaintiff."

"That means," said the court, "only actual damages which may be six cents or $60,000."

"That is correct," said Mr. Pound.

To Show Absence of Malice.

"Then," said Attorney Felden, "in the absence of the demand for a retraction no damages may be asked by way of punishment. But counsel has already charged malice to this jury and we cannot eliminate those impressions from their minds.

"Therefore, we have a right to show there was no malice and we propose to offer testimony of men of standing to show this general reputation.

"Precedents are few, for men of Roosevelt's standing and prominence have seldom brought such suits, but we have a somewhat parallel case in that of Daly vs. Palmetto Publishing Company, in the Supreme Court."

He then cited the case.

Colonel Roosevelt held a whispered conference with Attorney Van Benschoten.

"Mr. Belden and ourselves are not very far apart," said Van Benschoten addressing the court. Newspapers, however, do not always tell the truth and reports can not be admitted unless it is first shown that Mr. Newett had read the newspaper or heard the report in question. If Mr. Newett takes the stand and swears he had heard or read such reports and believed them to be true, they would be come pertinent."

Before the court session opened today Newett conferred at length with his attorneys, William P. Belden and Horace Andrews. They said they were discussing the order in which they would bring before the jury the different points they expect to present in support of the editorial in which Newett stated that Roosevelt "was drunk not infrequently."

To Offer 200 Depositions.

The defence attorneys have nearly 200 depositions to present. From 6 o'clock this morning until nearly 9 the depositions were gone over. The party came to Marquette in an automobile.

Colonel Roosevelt appeared early today. With his host, George B. Shiras, and Gifford Pinchot he took a long walk before breakfast along the Lake Superior shore. After a hearty breakfast, Colonel Roosevelt said he felt "bully, plus."

Judge Flanigan announced today that there will be no session of court on Memorial Day, but that a full day's work will be done on Saturday.

O'Loughlin testified he had come to know Roosevelt as Assistant Secretary of the Navy at Washington in 1897 and had occasion to visit him frequently. Attorney James Pound questioned him.

Q.—How close would you say you were to Colonel Roosevelt? A.—So close that at the time he started to the front with the Rough Rider regiment and I wanted to go along he advised that as I was married and without money to support my wife, I should stay at home until there was a general call. He said he was married, but had money with which to support his wife.

Q.—Did you know him as Vice-President? A.—Yes, we had become very close while he was assistant secretary of the navy.

Explains "Shaving Hour."

Q.—Did he, when he became Vice-President, move to Washington? A.—He was Vice-President a very short time, and I do not think he did.

Q.—When he became President did he move to Washington? A.—Yes, and resided there during the seven years he was President. I saw him morning, noon and night, especially at the shaving hour.

The witness on Pound's request explained at some length what was meant by the shaving hour. It was Colonel Roosevelt's custom, he said, to receive callers each morning, while he was being shaved.

Q.—After his term expired how long did he remain in Washington? A.—He left immediately.

Q.—When did you next see him? A.—Below Khartoum, about 400 miles.

Q.—Did you then accompany him? A.—Yes, and acted as his secretary on his trip through the Soudan and on to Paris, where I left him.

Q.—Did you attend with him any public dinners or banquets on that trip? A.—Many of them. I took his speeches in shorthand that they might not be distorted. I was with him at Rome when he met Mrs. Roosevelt.

Q.—In seeing what was to be seen in

How To Darken Gray Hair

By a Specialist.

A very satisfactory preparation which darkens gray hair and acts as a corrective agent for dandruff and other diseases of the scalp can be made at small expense and in your own home by dissolving a small box of Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water, then adding an ounce of bay rum and a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any drug store can furnish these ingredients. This is to be applied once a week until the hair is sufficiently darkened, then every two weeks to keep the hair soft and glossy and the scalp in a healthy condition. It may be used with equal success in darkening the beard. This is a preparation that gives splendid results, both as a hair darkener and a remedy for all scalp disorders, and is well worthy of a trial. You will find it far superior to the ordinary store preparation and much less expensive.—Advertisement.

SUMMERFIELD, 727-731 Washington St.

A Few Steps South of Boylston Street

ROOSEVELT AVERTED JAP WAR, 'SAYS WITNESS

Rome, did you accompany him? A.—I was with him practically all of his working hours.

Q.—From Rome where did you go? A.—He and Mrs. Roosevelt went to Geneva. We were there only a few hours and went on to Venice, Vienna, Buda Pest and Paris, where I remained with them only two days.

Q.—When did you next see him? A.—In New York on his return from Europe.

Q.—Did you then see him frequently? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the next trip on which you accompanied him? A.—In the 1910 campaign in New York State. In 1912 I went with him on his swing around the country, starting from Washington in September and going through all the Western and most of the Southern States and back to Washington.

Q.—How often would he make set dresses? A.—From 6 o'clock in the morning until midnight or later as we reached different towns.

Q.—How long have you known Roosevelt? A.—Twenty years.

Q.—From that acquaintance what can you say as to whether or not you ever saw him under the influence of liquor? A.—Not only have I never seen him under the influence of liquor, but such a suggestion seems to me silly.

Q.—Ever see him drink? A.—I have seen him drink a small sized glass of champagne at dinners. He never drank more than one glass.

At the Gridiron Club.

Q.—What is the gridiron Club? A.—An organization of newspaper men in Washington organized to receive distinguished men. It gives two dinners a year.

Q.—Are there official dinners in Washington? A.—Four dinners and five receptions given by the President are official.

Q.—Is liquor served at those? A.—At the dinners; seldom at the receptions, during Mr. Roosevelt's term.

A wordy skirmish between counsel on the two sides in the case in which Judge Flanigan entered was caused by an objection to one of Attorney Pound's questions. Judge Flanigan ordered Attorney Pound to beg Attorney Andrews's pardon.

The cross-examination of O'Loughlin was by Attorney Belden, chief counsel for Newett.

The fact that a critical surgical operation must be undergone by Mr. Newett is expected to hasten the presentation of his side of the case. Although he will attend the trial daily, he will go to a hospital immediately upon the retiring of the jury.

This suit, which has attracted national interest, is full of colorful incidents. Sensations are expected to develop when the defence attorneys outline their case.

Miller's Deposition.

It was asserted today that Jay Martin Miller, a former Washington newspaper correspondent, has sworn to a deposition that at the dinner to Uncle Joe Cannon, already referred to in the trial, President Roosevelt suddenly appeared and was welcomed boisterously.

"Have a little drink, Theodore," is the way Deponent Miller is reported to have sworn the ex-Speaker of the House greeted the prominent guest. Mr. Miller claims that Mr. Roosevelt answered, "No, I will not have a little one, but a big one," whereupon he is said to have drained a large glass of whiskey. Later he is reported to have imbibed champagne.

The prosecution asserts that Mr. Miller after being appointed Consul to Reims by President Roosevelt, appropriated to his own use an amount of champagne custom fees; that the President summarily dismissed him from the service, and that since then Mr. Miller has been a Roosevelt critic.

Vociferous applause by the throng of women spectators featured one phase of the trial.

Morse Made Blue Serge Suits

$20, $25, $30, $35

Made from the same serges that we have used for the past six years with such success that not a single complaint of any kind has been received.

Despite the increased cost of materials and labor, our prices have not been advanced on these $25, $30, $25 and $20 suits, nor on any of our other grades down to $15.

All sizes.

Perhaps you may not realize it, but there are still some men who don't know that a custom tailor cannot compete with us in value-giving.

One was in our store the other day. We showed him a few figures that changed his mind. We showed him, first, how we make 3000 suits a week, as compared to the average tailor's 50. We showed him how that lowered the entire cost of production, how we buy fabrics and trimmings in enormous price-saving quantities, while the tailor with his limited output must buy of the jobber and pay an extra profit.

In short, we showed him how it costs us from $9 to $10 less on a suit than the lowest amount at which a custom tailor could duplicate it.

After that it was easy to convince this man that in turning over to our customers the savings we secured, we were giving values that no tailor could possibly equal.

The matters of style and fit were quickly disposed of by simply taking a few Morse-Made garments out of our dust-proof cases and letting the man try them on. And he wasn't an easy man to fit, by any means.

We like opportunities like this. That man went out of our store a walking, talking advertisement for us, that beats this story of the incident all to pieces.

Stilwell Is Given 8 Years for Bribery

New York Legislator Is Sentenced to Sing Sing Prison.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Ex-State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx, who was convicted of bribery Saturday, was sentenced today to not less than four years nor more than eight years in Sing Sing prison by Justice Seabury in Criminal Court. Stilwell was found guilty of soliciting a $3,500 bribe from George R. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note Company, in connection with legislation at Albany.

LOBBY FRANTICAALLY AT WORK TO KILL BILL TO REFORM THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

The health of more than three million Massachusetts men, women and children will be at stake in the House of Representatives today, when piratical interests will attempt to kill the bill backed by the AMERICAN, providing for a reorganization of the inefficient State Board of Health.

This bill, providing for a paid board to act effectively in protecting the public health, is due for a second reading to-day. The AMERICAN won one of the most important fights in its health campaign when the House of Representatives voted, 114 to 98, to substitute the bill for the adverse report of a years' Ways and Means Committee.

A state-wide demand for the reorganization of the board compelled the vote of Monday. Progressive Republicans joined with loyal Democrats and won the fight for the people.

The reactionary interests, which have opposed all legislation designed to safeguard public health, are determined this bill shall be killed.

All day yesterday word was passed along the line that the bill threatened the existence of the powers that be. An active lobby buttonholed members. These lobbyists tried to change the votes of members who had stood for the bill Monday.

They met with obstacles, and their arguments fell flat. They could not lie for the real issue by any specious arguments. These tactics were the obstacles in their path.

THEY COULD NOT EXPLAIN AWAY THE EIGHTEEN "FRESH MADE GRAVES IN CANTON, CHARGEABLE DIRECTLY TO THE INACTIVITY OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

THEY COULD NOT EXPLAIN WHY MASSACHUSETTS HAS A DEATH RATE IN TYPHOID FEVER PROPORTIONALLY FOUR TIMES GREATER THAN LONDON.

THEY HAD TO ADMIT THAT MEMBERS OF THE BOARD WERE SERVING TWO MASTERS IN HIRING OUT TO CORPORATIONS WHILE SERVING AS MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

THEY KNEW IT WAS THE AMERICAN, NOT THE BOARD OF HEALTH, WHICH SECURED THE ONLY PURE FOOD LEGISLATION ON THE STATUTE BOOKS.

THEY KNEW THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH HAS BOARD HAS NEVER TOOK THE INITIATIVE IN GUARDING THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

THEY AGREED THEMSELVES THAT THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH NEEDED REORGANIZATION. THEN WHY NOT BY THE LEGISLATURE, NOT THEMSELVES?

THEY KNEW THE OLD BAY STATE IS THE LAUGHING STOCK AND ALL OTHER PROGRESSIVE STATES BECAUSE OF THE ABSENCE OF MODERN HEALTH LAWS.

But these lobbyists thronged the corridors and pleaded with legislators to protect the reputation of the aged Hiram F. Mills, the engineering member of the board, whom they said might become dangerously ill if this bill passed.

Loyal members of the House of Representatives answered that the place for Mr. Mills to explain his acting in a dual capacity was on the floor of the House, where the charges against him had been freely made.

If he did not receive heavy yearly fees from the Locks and Canals Company at Lowell, which sells its water to mills which pollute the Merrimac River, he should deny the charge, they said.

If Mr. Mills does not draw huge fees from the Essex Company of Lawrence, which indirectly pollutes the Merrimac River, he should deny that charge, too, they said.

If he has not received thousands in fees from corporations whose very business is hostile to the public health he should refuse to serve, he should deny the charge, they said, and rout his accusers.

Charges against other members of the board for not performing their duties on the State Board of Health were also made and went unchecked.

Some of them were:

That Dr. Mark W. Richardson, the secretary of the board, gets too big fees from a life insurance company to devote proper time to the board were for which he draws an annual salary of $5,000.

That Dr. William T. Hanson, the assistant secretary, a doctor who, it is declared, never wrote a prescription, never practiced his profession, is the real executive of the board.

That he has conducted the office of the Board of Health in a top-lofty, intolerant, dilatory attitude, which has given the office the reputation of being the most insolently conducted in the State House.

And that in all the fight which the AMERICAN has made for the securing of pure food legislation and safe-guarding the public health the State Board of Health has obstructed rather than aided the cause of the people.

It became known yesterday that outside of a few physicians who are beneficiaries of the system of patronage and politics, the board has built in its long tenure of office, doctors throughout the state are united in demanding the board be reorganized.

Members from Lawrence stated that the city of Lawrence has been forced to spend over a half a million dollars for the purification of the water it drinks from the Merrimac River, polluted by the corporations of Lowell, nine miles above.

Residents of Haverhill told Representatives of the makeshift attempts made by the Board of Health to dispose of the sewerage which flows past that prosperous city on what ought to be a beautiful river of pure water.

Name Receiver of Closed Maine Bank

Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms

J.P.Collins

Founder of the Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms. The man who has done more to keep down piano prices than any other dealer in Boston. The Largest Distributor of Pianos in America.

His May Piano Sale Closes Next Saturday at 9 P. M.

His Great Piano Sales

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano loaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes in, in DUE TIME a Sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' "Expense percentage" basis, and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear, without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices. Someone's loss is your gain.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

SOPHOMORE CREW BREAKS COURSE RECORD

The feat of the Sophomore crew in breaking the course record on Lake Waban, has set all Wellesley into a fever of excitement over the races which come tomorrow. Only a few days ago, the Senior crew shattered the previous record. The course is 680 yards, from the Hunnewell boathouse straight across to College Hall.

Although the Sophomore and Senior crews are the swiftest, the Juniors have their supporters, for the race is decided not altogether on speed. Speed counts fifty per cent, efficiency counts twenty-five, and form twenty-five. The Juniors claim they have the most polished crew on the lake.

The crews are the most attractive feature of Wellesley in the Spring. Every afternoon there are eight shells on the lake—each with eight oarsmen and a coxswain. The crews wear white sweaters, black bloomers and black stockings, with the class colors in their hair. The victorious sophomore crew consists of: Garretta Busey, Marie McMaster, Dorothy Richardson, Carrie Travers, Caroline Taylor, Sybil Bowen, Carolyn Blackstone, Dorothy Huggins and Elma Joffrion. Miss Bowen is captain and Miss Joffrion coxswain.

Wants More Police For Ipswich Strike

Chief Hunt Asks for Aid in Vain as Situation Grows More Serious.

IPSWICH, May 28.—Fearing strike trouble tonight, Police Chief Hunt appealed in vain for more police from the surrounding cities and towns which have already sent him several officers. With a town force augmented by thirty state Police, ten from Cambridge, fifteen from Lawrence, six from Gloucester and others from Beverly, Swampscott and Dean, the chief has had nearly 200 men, but none of these cities is able to give us any more. The chief said:

"I hope I shall not have to ask the governor to send troops here."

A parade planned by the two strikers from the Ipswich Hosiery mills last night was stopped. But plans were made today to hold the parade tonight. A call has been sent to Milford for Joseph Ettore to come here and take charge of the strike.

PART I.

"THEY'VE got Griggs!" Burke answered. There was exceeding rage in his voice, as he spoke from his kneeling posture beside the body, to which he had hurried after the summons to his aides. He glowered up into the bewildered face of the detective. "I'll break you for this, Cassidy," he declared fiercely. "Why didn't you get here on the run when you heard the shot?"

"But there wasn't any shot," the perplexed and alarmed detective expostulated. He fairly stuttered in the exigencies of his self-defense. "I tell you, Chief, there hasn't been a sound."

Burke rose to his feet. His heavy face was set in its sternest mold.

"You could drive a hearse through the hole they've made in him," he rumbled. He wheeled on Mary and Dick. "So!" he shouted, "now it's murder! . . . Well, hand it over. Where's the gun?"

Followed a moment's pause. Then the inspector spoke harshly to Cassidy. He still felt himself somewhat dazed by this extraordinary event, but he was able to cope with the situation. He nodded toward Dick as he gave his order: "Search him!"

Before the detective could obey the direction, Dick took the revolver from his pocket where he had bestowed it, and held it up.

And it so chanced that at this incriminating crisis for the son, the father hastily strode within the library. He had been aroused by the inspector's shouting, and was evidently greatly perturbed. His usual dignified air was marred by a patent alarm.

"What's all this?" he exclaimed, as he halted and stared doubtfully on the scene before him.

Rather, in a moment like this, was no respecter of persons, for all his habitual attentions on other occasions to those whose influence might serve him well for benefits received.

"You can see for yourself," he said grimly to the dumfounded magnate. Then, he fixed his sinister eyes on the son. "So," he went on, with sombre menace in his voice, "you did it, young man." He nodded toward the detective. "Well, Cassidy, you can take 'em both downtown. That's all."

The command aroused Dick to remonstrance against such indignity toward the woman whom he loved.

"Not her!" he cried, imploringly. "You don't want her, inspector! This is all wrong!"

Now, at last, Mary interposed with a new spirit. She had regained, in some measure at least, her poise. She was speaking again with that mental clarity which was distinctive in her.

"Dick!" she advised quietly, but with underlying urgency in her gently spoken words, "don't talk, please."

Burke laughed harshly.

"What do you expect?" he inquired ironically. "As a matter of fact, the thing's simple enough, young man. Either you killed Griggs or she did."

The inspector, with his charge, made a careless gesture toward the corpse of the murdered stool pigeon. For the Braetime Edward Gilder, as his glance unconsciously followed the officer's movements, looked and saw the ghastly inanimate heap of flesh and bone that had once been a man. He fairly reeled at the gruesome spectacle, then fumbled with an outstretched hand as he moved stumblingly until he laid hold on a chair, into which he sank helplessly. It suddenly smote upon his consciousness that he fell very old and broken. He marveled dully over the sensation—he was wholly new to him. Then, soon, from a long way off, he heard the strident voice of the inspector remorselessly continuing in the vein of the impossible accusation.

And that grotesque accusation was hurled against his only son—the boy whom he so loved. The thing was monstrous, a thing incredible. This whole seeming war no more than a chimera of the night, a phantom of bad dreams, with no truth under it. Yet, the stern voice of the official came with a strange semblance of reality.

"Either you killed him," the voice repeated grimly, "or you did. Well, then, young man, did she kill him?"

"Good God, no!" Dick shouted, aghast.

"Then it was you!" Such was the inspector's summary of the case.

Mary's words came frantically. Once again, she was become desperate over the course of events in this night of fearful happenings.

"No, no! He didn't!"

"Which Killed Him?"

Burke's rasping voice reiterated the accusation with a certain complacency in the inevitability of the dilemma.

"One of you killed Griggs. Which one of you did it?" He scowled at Dick. "Did she kill him?"

Again, the husband's cry came with the fierceness of despair over the fate of the woman.

"I told you, no!"

The inspector, always savagely impressive now in voice and look and gesture, faced the girl with saturnine persistence.

"Well, then," he blustered, "did he kill him?"

The nod of his head was toward Dick. Then, as she remained silent: "I'm talking to you!" he snapped. "Did he kill him?"

The reply came with a soft distinctness that was like a crash of destiny.

"Yes."

Dick turned to his wife in reproachful amazement.

"Mary!" he cried, incredulously. This betrayal was something inconceivable from her, since he believed that now at last she knew her heart.

Burke, however, as usual, paid no heed to the niceties of sentiment. They had small place in his concerns as an official of police. His sole ambition just was to fix the crime definitely on the perpetrator.

"You'll swear he killed him?" he asked briskly, well content with this concrete result of the entanglement.

Mary quietly evaded the question, while seeming to give unqualified assent.

"Why not?" she responded listlessly.

At this intolerable assertion as he deemed it, Edward Gilder was reanimated. He sat rigidly erect in his chair. In that frightful moment, it came to him that had been woven about her and Dick through no fault of their own. Her eyes were glowing with even more than their usual lustre. Her voice came softly modulated, almost mocking.

"Because you couldn't convict him," she said succinctly. A contented smile beat the red graves of her lips.

Burke sneered an indignation that was, nevertheless, somewhat fearful of what might be behind the woman's assurance.

"What's the reason?" he demanded, accordingly. "There's the body." He pointed to the rigid form of the dead man, lying there so very near them. "And the gun was found on him. And then, you're willing to swear that he killed him. . . . Well, I guess we'll convict him, all right. Why not?"

Mary's answer was given quietly, but none the less, with an assurance that could not be gainsaid.

"Because," she said, "by husband merely killed a burglar." At her turn, she pointed toward the body of the dead man. "That man," she continued evenly, "was the burglar. You know that! My husband shot him in defence of his home!" There was a brief silence. Then she added, with a wonderful mildness in the music of her voice, "And so, Inspector, as you know, of course, he was within the law!"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

DAVID A. SNELL, AT 86, TO TAKE FOURTH WIFE

DAVID A. SNELL, wealthy New Bedford horseman, who at 86 plans to wed for the fourth time.

NEW BEDFORD, May 28.—At the age of eighty-six, David A. Snell, wealthy cracker manufacturer, and one of the best-known horsemen in the State, is planning his fourth marriage. He has already filed his application for the wedding license, which will place him one notch behind men like Nat Goodwin and DeWolf Hopper, who are tied with five marriages each in the race for the matrimonial stakes.

Mr. Snell, who is the dean of the New Bedford Driving Club, is to wed Mrs. Janet Hamilton, a widow and sister-in-law of Bishop John W. Hamilton of the Methodist church. The bride-to-be is fifty-three years old and for some time has been Mr. Snell's housekeeper at his home here.

Mrs. Hamilton said today that the date for the wedding has not been fixed.

"I expect Mr. Snell and I shall be married next week," she declared. "I look for the arrival of my daughter to attend the wedding."

The bridegroom-elect is not only famous for his stable of fast horses, but also for his remarkable health and vigor. Though past the fourscore mark, he goes downtown every day, rain or shine, to his business.

His first wife died in 1858. His first marital troubles came in 1902 when his third wife sued him for separate maintenance. The next year she secured a divorce. Mr. Snell founded his fortune on a bakery business he started in Dedham. During the Civil War he made a great deal of money furnishing bread to the Union soldiers.

Bryan Is Very Fond of White Radishes

WASHINGTON, May 28. — Secretary Bryan is very, very fond of radishes, of the white variety. They are his penchant (whatever that means). He conducts a morning search every day, with a neat and capacious market basket daintily slung over his left arm, amid the crowd of market shoppers. He couldn't find any the other day, and remarked to a woman selecting her spinach for the Sunday meal, "I'm just crazy about white radishes, no other kind will do."

Pig Like Mary's Lamb Follows Boy to School

WHITINSVILLE, May 28.—"Mary had a little lamb" will now have to be done over to fit this tale of "Charley" Brownlee's pig. Like the lambkin this logist of Browning's went to school. Piggiewiggie not only went to the schoolhouse at Plummer's in this town but began to squeal while the pupils recited. A cat attacked the pig, mounting the little chap's porkchops and digging at his spine with her claws while piggie squealed. The school children chased the pig home.

Seized Liquor to Escape the Gutter

ALBANY, May 28.—A new law just signed by Governor Sulzer will change the method of disposing of illegally kept liquor seized in raids which henceforth will be sold at auction. According to the State excise department, since 1911 40,000 bottles and 730 barrels of beer, 10,000 gallons of liquors, 1,850 barrels and 9,000 gallons of wine have been poured into the gutter.

Victims Badly Burned as Torch Ignites Wax.

GLOUCESTER, May 28. Frank Corcoran and Guy Moore, telephone linemen, were terribly burned when a kettle of wax ignited from a gasoline torch at the bottom of a manhole where they were repairing cables today.

Men on the ground outside heard cries and saw smoke curling from the top of the manhole. They found the kettle blazing through wreaths of smoke, with Moore trying to climb out and Corcoran flat on the manhole floor.

With much difficulty the men managed to put out the kettle fire with dirt. Then they helped Moore out. He was burned on the hands and face. Corcoran was lifted out unconscious. His condition is serious.

Two Women Claim Novelist Husband

LONDON, May 28.—A sensation was created in the West London County Court yesterday, when two women, each claiming to be the wife of the defendant, appeared when Ford Maddox Hueffer, the well known novelist, was summoned to court to answer to the charge of going to arrears on the maintenance order granted his wife, Elsie.

When Hueffer's counsel mentioned that the defendant had married the second Mrs. Hueffer abroad, the judge asked what right the second wife had to call herself Mrs. Hueffer. The attorney replied that the whole affair was most extraordinary and asked for an adjournment, which the court refused.

Colonel Gifford of Salvation Army Ill

Colonel Adam Gifford, head of the Salvation Army in New England, is reported to be seriously ill with a stomach trouble which has baffled specialists for several months. Although suffering intense pain at times, Colonel Gifford has refused to give up his work against the advice of his physicians.

A Little Knowledge Is a Dangerous Thing

When you are so sick that the world looks blue, your body feels heavy, the head aches, the stomach is out of order, it is dangerous to say: "Oh, well, I'll be better by tomorrow" — or to take something which will do more harm than good.

Such a condition shows a Liver Disorder, which in turn affects the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous system. Neglected, it may lead to more serious disease. Rightly treated at once, it becomes only a passing incident. But—remember—it must be rightly treated. Not with Pills, Salts or Cathartic Waters. Think! Your Liver is sick and that is the most important of your organs; then the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous system. First need a combination of substances which will do its work in the proper way. That's the way every doctor works. The New Discovery — Hunyadi James Pills—is a scientific remedy and its combination is declared the most valuable by eminent physicians and scientists. They are not an experiment. You need not take them one to ten pills to see if they work. One or two pills at night are enough. They are sold by all druggists, 25 cents a box and any up-to-date Drug Store. Price 25 cents, or get them by mail from A. J. Steichen, New York.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

WHEN Clark Griffith sent Nick Altrock in to take "Long Tom" Hughes' place in the second game with the Athletics, the manager of the Senators threw his cards on the table. Time was when Nick Altrock was about as good as there was. In this particular instance he got away with the job, just as Konetchy did when Miller Huggins, in sore distress for a pitcher, sent his first baseman in to work against the Cubs. But the incident emphasizes Griffith's weakness.

BY transferring Altrock from his vaudeville capacity to the post of pitcher against the league leaders, Griffith confessed what everybody believed before the Senators made their phenomenal run last season—namely, that Walter Johnson IS the Washington baseball team. Griffith, who arose out of seventh place and knocked at the doors of the championship last season, was believed to have something by those who did not discover that the most he had was wisdom to use Walter Johnson judiciously. He has undertaken to repeat this year by the same process. The temporary caving in some of the other parts of his baseball machine has upset him.

WHEN the season of double-headers descended upon Griffith and his lame flinging corps, he was forced to dig up Altrock to help him out of the hole.

Now you realize the value of Walter Johnson. Where would the Senators be if he had not been there to pitch or pinch eleven victories out of twelve starts? Either by pitching full games or by standing by to relieve the other fellow when his team had a chance, Johnson is responsible for eleven of the nineteen games won by the Senators.

And it seems that if Johnson had not been there, Washington would have won precious little except the eight games that Johnson had no part in. This ought to dispose of the Senators for the present.

IN passing, we are forced to admit, also, that something desperate might have occurred to the Red Sox this week, too, if a merciful Providence had not sprinkled rain over Manhattan Island yesterday. Imagine Tris Speaker or Clyde Engle being called upon to pitch in the pinch for the world's champions. That might easily have happened this week, had the Red Sox been forced to play their full string of nine games.

LIKE all other ball players—big and little—Speaker has an itching to pitch a part of a big league game some day. Ty Cobb has the same desire. Watch them warm up before the game. Notice Speaker, for instance, pick out some catcher and practice curving them over before the grandstand.

Sliding Shaner has the fever, too. Whenever a bunch of kids chases rides on the corner bus they always fight over two questions—who will bat and who will pitch.

But it won't do in the big leagues in these days of specialized baseball, million dollar plants and 30-cent seats.

Engle was mentioned in the paragraph above because he has played about every other position in baseball and would naturally like to round out his career by a turn on the slab.

SPEAKING of the Athletics and the Senators and the pitchers, did you notice that Eddie Plank let the Washington batters go home with two hits yesterday?

THE Senators are not so far ahead of the Sox that they can't be passed in a week. And, if they do pass the Senators, they can likely jump over the White Hose at about the same time. They are within speaking distance of third place.

* * *

We have various reasons to be thankful, one of which is that we are not Arthur Peiky.

* * *

Clarke Griffith informs us that Walter Johnson has not attained his best form, but the form that he has attained is good enough to suit at least seven teams in the American League.

EAGAN DEFEATS KENNEDY IN GO AT ATLAS CLUB

By JACK CONWAY.

Joe Eagan, the South Boston lightweight, won from Steve Kennedy of Lawrence at the all-star show of the Atlas A. A. last night. Eagan put up a good battle and had a big margin on Jim Crilley's protege. Kennedy was not in the best of condition and it was announced that he had been ill but that he agreed to meet Eagan rather than disappoint the members of the Atlas Club.

Johnny Gallant of of Chelsea and "Knockout" Sweeney of New York were scheduled to clash in the feature bout of the evening. Sweeney, however, called off his engagement here at the eleventh hour and it was necessary to substitute "One Round" Hogan.

Hogan Made Poor Showing.

Hogan was in no condition to fight. He was overweight and his wind was very poor. He realized from the very start that he was outclassed by Gallant and devoted the greater part of his time to stalling. If he had attempted to mix things with the rugged little Chelsea boy, he would probably have been knocked out in six or seven rounds.

The Californian outweighed Gallant by at least fifteen pounds, while he had height and reach in his favor. But even with these advantages he failed to show up well. Gallant did his best work at close quarters and would undoubtedly have stopped Hogan if Referee Jack Sheehan had not persisted in prying the men apart whenever they started to mix things at close quarters.

The opening ten-round bout was between Johnny Munice, the clever Charlestown featherweight, and Phil McGovern of Brooklyn, a brother of "Terrible Terry." This contest was declared a draw.

Munice outboxed McGovern 2 to 1, but the latter was very aggressive in the majority of the rounds and landed some stinging punches which jarred the Bunker Hill lad.

Patsy Greene of Cambridge made his debut as a professional by vanquishing "Young" Bouchea of Woonsocket, R. I., after six rounds of boxing.

White to Box Gibbons.

Mike Gibbons, the sensational St. Paul boxer, has been signed to clash with Joe White of South Boston in the main bout of twelve rounds next Tuesday night. Terry Brooks will meet Frankie Mack in an eight-round semi-final. Ed Bennett of Quincy will box "Young" McGovern of Woburn in one of the six-round preliminaries, while "Young" Ketchell of New York will swap punches with Al Limerick in the other six-round "go."

College Games Will Be Close

Cornell-Penn. Rule Favorites

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

Owing to the great strength of a number of the minor colleges and the unknown strength of Yale, Harvard, Michigan and Princeton, the coming intercollegiate track and field championships should be a dual contest between the University of Pennsylvania and Cornell. These two great rivals have not shown remarkable form in their dual meets with other colleges but they have the services of a few sterling athletes as a foundation for prospective intercollegiate champions.

It is always the great athletic stars that contribute to make the winning combination in a championship meet. In this respect Cornell has the services of Jones while Pennsylvania will rely on Lippincott to win many points. Cornell cannot depend upon Jones to win both the mile and half-mile events or can Pennsylvania look to Lippincott as a sure winner of the 220-yard dash and quarter-mile run.

Hard Task for Jones.

While the outcome of the meet does not rest entirely on the shoulders of either of these athletes, nevertheless if either of these marvels fails to win two events their colleges are out of the meet as regards winning the premier honors.

For the first time in his successful and undefeated career as a track star in college ranks, Jones faces one of the hardest contests that any athlete ever had to undertake. Idol of his college, both to alumni and undergraduates, Jones is looked upon to win the track and field championship for Cornell in his year in his last appearance in a college meet. It will also be his last appearance as an athlete, for he will retire in June to take up the burdens of business. Opposing Jones in both the mile and half-mile events will be Norman S. Taber, captain of the Brown University track team. Taber is seeking a victory over Jones and all that goes with such a victory. He will start in Saturday's race with the idea of winning the intercollegiate title, for this is his last appearance in the intercollegiate ranks.

Brown has no chance of being returned a winner, for Taber is the only great athlete that represents that college. If Pennsylvania, Michigan, Yale, Harvard or any of the other large colleges had the services of Taber they would in all probability win the meet.

Jones Does not Fear Result.

Jones does not fear Taber, neither does Taber fear the outcome of his contest with Jones. In his two races with the Cornell captain he has been returned a winner once, and has also a dead heat to his credit. Both of the two marvels are holders of the one-mile college title running a dead heat in last year's games.

Last Saturday Taber did a mile in 4m. 18 2-5s. This was done on a very heavy track and with no competition. He afterwards covered the half-mile in 1m. 55 3-4s. He will be able to do better these performances Saturday. Lawson, Robertson, Kivlat and many other well-known followers of track athletics believe that Taber will win. On the other hand John Ryder of the B. A. A. Meredith and many others are certain that Jones will defeat Taber. There is no doubt but that the man who wins the mile race will only win by a small margin and that he will be forced to cover the distance in close to 4m. 15s. If the weather conditions favor fast running it is impossible to see how the record of 4m. 15 1-5s. will withstand this race.

In the half-mile, Jones will again be forced to battle Taber and also another new athlete in the person of Brown of Yale, who has been credited with doing 1m. 54 3-5s. for the distance. Jones can, however, be depended to win the event, as he is capable of doing close to 1m. 52s. for the full 880-yard course when right.

Lippincott is the one athlete of the great army of track stars entered who appears to have two events at his mercy. On his past performances, and on the form he has shown this season, he should win both the 220 and 440-yard events. Should Jones be defeated in the mile and Lippincott win his two races, Pennsylvania will in all probability win the meet.

RED SOX GAMES WITH YANKEES AGAIN HELD UP

NEW YORK May 28. The Boston Red Sox were forced to lose again this afternoon, the double-set with the Yankees being called off shortly after noon on account of the rain.

This is the second day's layoff for the world's champions and the players would rather be out on the ball field. The calling off of today's attractions leaves a double-header on the card for tomorrow and the managers of both teams are praying for the same to occur.

Manager Stahl is disappointed that the expected big players to take an active big share in the series with Manager Chance's team and could spoil the league race but all these expectations have gone to naught.

The games tomorrow will attract a big crowd in this city after which Stahl will take a boys over to Washington for a week's attraction on the home lots.

Manager George Stallings was very backward in postponing the game for he hoped to trim his Pilgrims but a good crowd is waiting today. Manager Mathewson will use three star pitchers in the series and had her his second choice, while Stallings had Bill James, Otto Hess and Walter Dickson ready for the fray.

POINT FOR NEW HAVEN IN GRAB OF CAR LINES

The New Haven Railroad has won the first skirmish in its attempt to gobble up the street railway lines in Western Massachusetts, as a step in the direction of securing a complete monopoly of transportation facilities in the State.

By a vote of 150 to 67, the House of Representatives has advanced to a third reading the trolley grab bill, which gives the New Haven Railroad authority to acquire direct control of the Western trolleys, in direct contradiction to a long-established policy of the Commonwealth to keep control of railroad and trolley lines separate.

The bill has yet to receive another reading in the House and will then go to the Senate, where, it is understood, the New Haven has enough votes to send it through to the Governor. The latter has vetoed the measure once and has given no indication that he will change his attitude toward the proposition.

The passage of the bill to a third reading in the House was accomplished by months of active work on the part of a powerful lobby in the employ of the New Haven road, aided by the efforts of certain legislators from the western part of the State, who are in hopes of securing trolley extensions in their districts in return for the control given the New Haven over the trolleys in that section.

A lively debate lasting more than two hours preceded the vote on the bill in the House. Strong speeches in opposition to the measure were made by Representatives Benjamin F. Haines of Medford, John G. Stevens of Marblehead, William J. Napheu of Natick and Morton H. Burdick of Adams.

Calls Bill "Bunco Game."

Representative John F. Meaney of Charlestown, the minority leader of the House, offered an amendment designed to compel the New Haven to keep its promise to build 200 miles of trolley lines in the western part of the State if the bill is passed. The amendment provided that the New Haven should expend $10,000,000 for extensions, instead of $5,000,000 as provided in the bill at present.

He pointed out that it has been generally agreed that $5,000,000 will not construct more than 100 miles of railway. He said that President Mellen has admitted that the five millions which the New Haven agrees to expend is but the price which it is willing to pay in return for being given absolute control of all transportation in western Massachusetts. He characterized the bill as a gigantic "bunco game." His amendment was defeated, however, by a vote of 51 yeas to 174 nays. The New Haven did not want the amendment.

Representative Stevens put the issue squarely up to the House, saying that the question was whether the House wanted to go on record as in favor of or against monopoly. "The monopoly policy will not stop at Worcester if this bill is passed," he said. "The next step will be to take over the Boston & Worcester and then the Boston Elevated."

Lobbyists in Galleries.

While the debate was in progress, several New Haven lobbyists were seated in the House galleries looking down on the members.

Representative Haines said:

"This bill is intended to give the New Haven complete monopoly of transportation in Western Massachusetts, to be achieved by purchase of the present lines at more than their actual value, the effect of which will be to require the traveling public to pay dividends on inflated stock capitalization.

"Much of the poor service on the New Haven and Boston & Maine is due to the New Haven policy of expansion and monopoly and this extension of its interests will result in a further reduction of general service."

Representatives Napheu and Burdick also made strong speeches in opposition to the bill. The latter declared that the New Haven, if the bill passes, will construct only such lines as promise no facilities at all, either by steam or electric road.

The members who spoke for the bill confined themselves to pathetic appeals for the small hill towns in Western Massachusetts "that are gradually decaying because of lack of transportation facilities."

MAKES RHEUMATISM PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Crippled-Up Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses of Croxone Are Taken.

It is needless to suffer any longer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up, and bent out of shape with its heart-wrenching pains, when you can surely avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys, that fail to filter from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid; and it is useless to rub on liniments or take ordinary remedies to relieve the pain. This only prolongs the misery.

The only way to cure rheumatism is to remove the cause. The new discovery, Croxone, does this, because it neutralizes and dissolves all the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, inactive kidneys, so they can filter all the poison from the blood and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is the most wonderful medicine ever made for chronic rheumatism, kidney troubles and bladder disorders. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find relief from the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle at any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money-back guarantee. There does a day a few days is often all that is ever needed to overcome the worst backache or urinary disorders.

Only Clothes of Known Quality Here

While it is true that choice merchandise, in desirable patterns, is extremely scarce this season, it is also true that, through our redoubled efforts and unceasing vigilance, no goods of questionable quality have found their way to our crystal glass cases.

Five or six years' accumulation of otherwise unsalable woolens were recently auctioned off in New York and made up into "clothing" which could be sold "at a price," but we're glad to say that no Kennedy customer has been invited to purchase these goods, which, possibly—like wine—have improved with age, though we very much doubt it.

Here are 10,000 crisp, new Suits—all of known quality and offered by a store of unquestioned reliability. Low Summer Street rent, no charge accounts and big spot-cash buying for six great stores make our values $3 to $10 better than others can afford to offer. We safeguard your interests in three respects—quality, style, price.

The season is about done "suggesting" new clothes—it is already demanding them. Step in and try on a few of these

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

"WHEN engaged in washing dishes," a woman of exalted ideals advised in a woman's magazine, "fix not your mind upon the sordidness of the task. Rise above it by looking with appreciative eyes at the delicate tints in the china, its pure transparency, the softness of its curves. Learn the history of Dresden, Limoges and Sevres, and the task becomes an intellectual joy." Daysey Mayme Appleton read, and what she read sank in to come to the surface next morning when she found herself confronted with the task of washing greens.

A young man, of whom she could not have thought more if he had been hand-painted, was coming and he had expressed the yearning that comes to all in the Spring to have greens for dinner.

She had bought a peck in the belief that there would be enough left to last a week, and when she poured out cold water preparatory to washing them, she fixed her mind on all that they represented: Spring-time, freshening showers, the sunlight, the singing of the birds, blue skies, the drowsy humming of insects and fragrant zephyrs that stirred the leaves to dancing motion.

She washed and washed and rewashed, digging back into her brain for some knowledge of botany. "That was a sentate," she said, taking a leaf through seven waters, "and this is a reticulate, and here is a beautiful example of the pinnated."

She took the leaves through the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth waters, unconsciously imbibing less each time of the tender zephyrs that had stirred the leaves to dancing, the bright sunlight and the gentle showers. There was an accumulation of sand that proved her task was only begun and she washed the greens through four more waters. Her back ached, she stood first on one foot and then on the other; her hands began to feel as if they belonged to the washerwoman, and her spirits began to droop.

When she submerged the greens into the twelfth water her soul was submerged with them and it never rose again to the plane of exaltation advised by the woman of lofty ideals in the magazine. At last her task was completed and she put the greens over to boil and there seemed a Great Plenty, and when she dressed to meet the man of whom she could not have thought more if he had been hand-painted, they boiled and boiled and boiled, looking a little less every time she lifted the lid.

"It's a whole peck of greens," she said with a sob at the dinner table an hour later, patting before her Best Beloved a dish in the centre of which was a little green mess no bigger than a bug that had been stepped on.

No Wonder!

Meeting a boy, the bishop stopped and asked him: "Can you tell me the way to the nearest station?"

The boy pointed out the way.

"How far is it?" the bishop asked.

"About a mile," the boy replied, staring hard at the bishop's knee-breeches and gaiters. As his lordship turned away the boy added: "What's up? Somebody pinch yer bike?"

"Care Casts Anchor in the Harbor of a Dream"

BY NELL BRINKLEY

—Nell Brinkley Says—

WHERE is the bachelor—so easy-going, "hard-game," arrow-proof—who does not sit back and, shifting a certain loneliness which he dubs "care" from his busy brain, dream such a dream as this in his cigarette smoke—a bit of a bungalow in the winding shades of a canon, with a fireplace in it and roses over the door, the fine wine of twilight over it all, a little woman shading her eyes, her skirts blowing in the coming night wind, holding tight the hand of a stubby, tanned-kneed baby, waiting for him at the end of the path? There'll be a dog, too—maybe not a thoroughbred—(though the first two are, all right)—and maybe a little tame deer in a wire enclosure under the trees—and—and—— Where is the bachelor who does not plan his little institution—whose care never easts anchor in the harbor of a dream!

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"THINGS ain't spread out over the world," declared the Head Barber. "I am getting to be more and more of a Socialist every day. That old stiff that just went out is worth about a million dollars and he hasn't gave me a tip since he has been stopping at the hotel. His two sons are like a rock, but they make their own way in the world, and it's just as well. I'll bet neither of them could jimmy a dollar out of papa."

"Oh, well, they'll get it all when he kicks off," said the Manicure Lady.

"But it don't look like he is ever going to do that little thing," replied the Head Barber. "This old wart is as hard to kill as an angle worm. You can break one of them into four pieces and every part goes along and seems to be able to take a little nourishment, just like a full-sized worm. No, I guess the old chap will be here till he is around a hundred, and by that time, the way the boys are going, they will be where they don't need no inheritance."

"I have often thought it was funny myself," said the Manicure Lady, "the way some folks has everything they want and then don't seem to do anything. That sounds kind of mixed, George, but you know what I mean. Look at my Uncle Frank, for instance. He is so mean, George, that he rubs himself around the parlor chairs and tired chair so as not to wear out the rugs. Poor Wilfred knows that Frank has all the coin in the world, nearly, and not a long time ago he loaned uncle for two hundred dollars to print a book of his poems. It seems Wilfred was over in New York and met one of them phoney publishers that will publish anybody's poetry if the poet pays for publication in advance, and he thought he just had to have two hundred dollars to get out his book. Father tried to tell him that no good publisher does business that way, but the boy was set on getting the two hundred, so he decided to brace uncle for it. Wilfred prides himself, George, on the way he goes about making a touch or asking any kind of a favor. He says that he plans it out careful, like Napoleon when he was planning battles.

"About a week before he went to see about the two hundred he wrote a little poem boosting his dear Uncle Frank. This is how it went:

"My Uncle Frank, to him I point with pride.

He is my uncle on my mother's side.
I like her, he is so gentle and so kind.
So noble in his giving, so refined.
That all who know him think the world of him.

And love to gratify his every whim.
His handsome head is prematurely a snow white head.

I, minds me of the Caesars that are dead.
Almighty Providence I always thank
For sparing through the years my Uncle Frank.

"That's a pretty good poem for the uncle," observed the Head Barber.

"It sounds all right if you don't know the uncle," said the Manicure Lady. "but there ain't a line of truth in the poem except that Frank is mother's brother. He is as much like my dear Ma as applejack is like warm milk. Nobody never applied none of his whims without getting paid for it, and they usually had to wait for their pay, too. And as for his handsome face reminding anybody of the dead Caesars, all I've got to say is that after I've seen Frank looked at close I just must have been mad to die.

"I guess Uncle Frank must have been wise to the game in Wilfred's poem, because he didn't no loot and knows down in his own heart that he is a mean old skinflint. Anyhow, he didn't make no reply to the verses, and when Wilfred went to get the two hundred he got a run-around except the gate. You, indeed, George, the money in this world ain't divided right. If I was boss things, I'd do a setting here broke the day after pay day."

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for many lengths of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations.

Defraud the Same Foolish Women who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

DeMiracle
Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determining which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

APRIL 16.—I have been sorely negligent of you lately, Diary, but the kaleidoscopic rapidity with which familiar forms and long-established opinions have changed has left me in a state of bewilderment. If I had started to pour into your sympathetic ear my belief that Sally Spencer did right in inviting the widow to visit her, something would have occurred before the page was filled to convince me she did wrong.

I have tried to help her according to my interpretation of the needs of the situation by flirting violently with Mrs. Brown, even going so far as to give the widow every opportunity to ask me to marry her—indeed, encouraging her to do so—and all I got for jeopardizing my future happiness was a scolding from Sally.

"This," she said to me very coldly one evening, when I had refused to take a hint from the disapproving looks she gave me and she had been compelled to remove me bodily from the scene by asking me to walk to the corner mail box with her, "is my game, and I want you to know, Max, that I am competent to play it without any assistance from you."

"It seems to me," I grumbled, "that I am rendering you very valuable assistance at this minute. What would be your excuse for leaving home two hours after hour if you didn't have me around? You want a walk around the block, and Max will take you, of course. You find you must make a call on a sick friend, and Max will escort you there and wait for you. You are overwhelmed with a longing to see Manette, and Max will step across the lawn with you, and, as for the mail box, you know, Sally Spencer, you have mailed more letters in the past week than you ever wrote in your life, and it never occurs to you that your maid or your man will mail them for you. No, you must go yourself, and Max must go with you.

A Cold Answer

"Do you think Mrs. Brown likes to be thrown at your husband's head like that?"

"She seems to be enjoying it," a trifle more coldly.

I couldn't gainsay that, for I have never known the widow to seem as happy as she has appeared since she became a guest of the Spencer home. Her enjoyment proves to me that women, just as well as men, like to play with fire, and that more of them would go to the devil if such an excursion in a woman's life were as quickly forgotten as when a man takes it. The fact that the label put on her luggage is stuck on for life is all that keeps her from going to the end of the line. In her heart she goes there as often as a man.

Of course there are exceptions. There is Margaret Hill, who never in her life committed a sin as enormous as crocheting on Sunday, but what happiness would a man find in her?

He would have to devote the rest of his life to thinking before he said a word, and never again would he dare to be spontaneous in reminiscence or joke.

There have been situations in the sowing and harvesting of my small crop of wild oats that were excruciatingly funny, a few that were sad, and one that was almost tragic, but I wouldn't be allowed to recall the most innocent if I married a woman as good as Margaret Hill. I should dare to call deeds and happenings to my sowing, seeds I find that all men must plant who marry into life and strive to live up to the glorified ideals of the woman they married.

Wemmilkie, my wife is ever content to let a man's yesterday alone. "Did you ever do this-and-so?" she begins to ask before the honeymoon has waned, and her husband, for the sake of peace of mind as well as his own, is compelled to lie like a thief.

I can just fancy myself, Diary, telling Margaret Hill that I had lived my almost fifty years without the commission of a sin!

Never Kissed

"My mother died when I was a boy," I can hear myself telling her, "and she was the last woman I kissed 'till I kissed you."

"But did you never meet any woman you thought you loved," she would persist, in the insane fashion women have of trying to undermine their happiness.

"Never," I would reply emphatically. "Even when other men went around at night and did all sorts of wicked things, I didn't put go around with them!"

"Never, never, NEVER!" reaching for my halo.

"But I thought," a little doubtfully, "I once heard you speak of being on the streets with Tom Addison till 3 o'clock in the morning."

"My dear," in tones of righteous reproof, "we were on our way to sit up with the dead."

Perhaps this would satisfy her, but I have a notion she would ask who was dead, and I should be compelled to invent a dreadful corpse, go into all the details of his last illness, and perhaps, the next time we were out riding, be confronted with the request that I show her his grave!

The next time she renewed the attack on my past I would throw up more breastworks of hypocrisy, growing more skilful with every occasion.

And why would she do this, Diary? Well, the Lord alone knows. A boy who punches a hole in his drum to find out where the noise comes from has his counterpart in every wife. She isn't content to simply be happy; she must punch her happiness all to pieces, using a question mark as a tool.

When she has discovered that her husband wasn't a spotless angel in his past she declares "All men are alike!" And when a woman says "All men are alike," all men they are all as black as tar.

April 29.—I seem to write on these pages for the purpose of concealment, rather than of communication, but the truth is I can't nerve myself to the ordeal of putting down in black and white what is really happening. To do this will make it really so, and I am blindly hoping I will wake up after a time and that it is all a dream.

Mrs. Brown and Jack Spencer have become so abandoned in their infatuation that they no longer have the decency to conceal it from his wife. And as for me! Well, Diary, when I caught him kissing her the other day, wouldn't you have thought they'd have had at least the grace to look ashamed?

Not a bit of it! All the embarrassment was mine! I pledged Sally my word I wouldn't interfere, but I broke it this morning when the widow came across the lawn and took a seat beside me in the library. I have noticed that as soon as Jack leaves the house she hunts me up, showing no desire to face an hour or two alone with her hostess.

I began by asking her rather gruffly when she was going home.

In tones as innocent as if she were telling a preacher she liked lamb stew, she replied:

"I can't tell you when I am going, but I can tell you this much: When I go, I'm not going alone!"

Benefited Many Who Had Lung Trouble

Those who suffer from Lung Trouble are generally troubled with night sweats, fever, loss of strength and little or no appetite. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine which has been most successful in stopping night sweats, reducing fever and promoting appetite, and many who have used it declare it saved their lives. Investigate what it did in this case:

"Dear Sir: For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my disease Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital. They also confirmed my trouble and I was ordered away at once. Mr nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks, I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy, fever left me and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been for twelve years. I strongly recommend it."

On some of the large Atlantic steamers there are as many as 160 dresses.

The "Woman's Court," inaugurated in Chicago, has proved a great success. Convinced that there were many cases in which a woman would prove a better arbitrator with her own sex than a mere man, Judge Pinckney appointed Miss Mary Barteime to take over all essentially feminine cases. She has proved most successful in dealing with wayward girls, or those "who never had a chance." No men are admitted to "Judge" Barteime's court when cases of this class are being dealt with, the probation stenographers and reporters being all women.

OLIVE Tablets OILthe Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-coloured tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe with the probation to take, but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to exert Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation, 10 and 25 cents per box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O.

The Home Beauty Parlor

by Betty Dean

L. S.: Every woman wants to be slender nowadays, so I don't blame you, and since this is winter and inexpensive home-remedy, lanolin was discovered, one may make our figure fit suit the latest mode. Patients allows you to reduce flesh without danger or discomfort, and it leaves the skin firm and nourished. Simply get four ounces of lanolin from your druggist, dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water and strain. Take a tablespoonful three times a day. Avoid cereals. They are too starchy. This remedy is cheap and harmless and rapid in effect.

Ada S.: Your eyes are probably overtired and overworked. Rest the nerves, lighten the color and clear the film of indecision from the eyes method. Dissolve one ounce of orrine in a pint of soft water. Drop 2 drops daily in each eye. This is a simple, economical tonic. If troubled with dark rings or fullness under your eyes try a weak solution in the cotton and laving it over the eyes while lying down. It rests the nerves and starts circulation. Both are necessary to beauty of eye.

Helen O.: You are one of many who ask me about eye shampoos, and I gladly quote an old-best London beauty specialist. "The shiny eye comes from the lack of sebaceous matter, and to them so that the pores are completely closed; the sebaceous glands, becomes active, causing hair to assume a dead, dull color." I endorse every word. Avoid eggs (and soap, too) on your hair. Try the fine preparation made by stirring a teaspoonful camphor in a cup of hot water. It will bring out new beauty-possibilities in hair, a hair cure and a splendid dandruff, and promote growth and fluffiness. It removes oil one oil.

Lilah G.: I don't believe your skin is seriously affected, and I am sure it can be easily helped. There is a reputation I am always glad to recommend because it is so reliable and cheap and easily made. And it is a splendid substitute for ordinary face powder which is at the bottom of many complexion troubles. Get 4 ounces of spermaz, dissolve it in half a pint of hot water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir thoroughly and let the mixture cool. There you have a two months' supply of quality complexion needs. The white substances is instantly relieved, and the effect is lasting.

Hattie L.: You are evidently and old enough to be worry about wrinkles, but your good looks but you are wise in taking every precaution against the loss of your complexion and the coming of premature wrinkles. Keep the skin firm and the complexion clear with a nightly massage with this delightful, inexpensive preparation. Mix together an ounce of almonds, two tablespoonfuls glycerine and a pint cold water. Stir and let stand a few hours. This will give a healthy tone to the tissues and prevent the large pores which come from a weak, soft condition of the skin. Use this lotion for a while and note how it encourages the natural color without a trace of the fresh. Many have found it a return to skin-health.

Beatrice B.: From what you write of your frequent "blues" and nervous spells I am quite sure you are run down and need a good tonic, something that will enrich the blood and regulate your whole system. Here is an excellent blood builder that loses up the skin and clears it. Dissolve half a cup of sugar and one ounce powdered sulphur in a pint bottle of water. Add enough hot water to make a full quart of the mixture. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. You will feel benefited right away, the whole system will look brighter and it will improve your looks, too.

D. R. V.: I am not surprised that your hair is falling out with such nervous spells I am quite sure you are run down and need a good tonic, something that will enrich the blood and regulate your whole system. Here is an excellent blood builder that loses up the skin and clears it. Dissolve half a cup of sugar and one ounce powdered sulphur in a pint bottle of water. Add enough hot water to make a full quart of the mixture. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. You will feel benefited right away, the whole system will look brighter and it will improve your looks, too.

D. R. V.: I am not surprised that your hair is falling out with such nervous spells. You have tried everything on the market. Scientists agree on the wonderful merits of quinine preparations, but they must always be made fresh. This you can do, with little cost, at home. Simply dissolve one ounce of quinesin (get it at any drug store) in ½ pint alcohol, and mix with ½ pint water and you have a delightful homemade tonic that will keep the scalp healthy and give you back your "crowning glory." Use twice a week. I know nothing better to prevent baldness.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

There was not much demand for stocks today and price sagged as a rule where there was activity. Locally, price changes were small as the opening for a revival of much significance. In New York it is reported that there was a scant supply of the good dividend paying stocks.

There was much talk about the recoverable residue of the Lorain and San Francisco road and while some observers said the effect had been discounted it was nevertheless the outstanding topic this morning. Distillers Securities were weak in New York. It dropped from 13¼ to 13 in early trading. The Harriman roads were stronger.

Towards the end in London that market had a heavy tone.

N. Y. Stocks Open Under Pressure.

The list was under pressure when the New York market opened and declines ranging from fractions to two points were sustained. St. Louis & San Francisco issues were the weakest in consequence of the appointment of a receiver for the road in St. Louis. Prices opening were 1% lower, selling around 49¾. But the second preferred lost two points. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific fell up to a point. The former gained ⅛ while the latter recovered, after shading fractionally. American Smelting was off for a time 1¼. Other issues which were off were Amalgamated, ½; American Can, ¼; Canadian Pacific, ½; General Electric, ⅝; Missouri Pacific, ¼; Pennsylvania, ¼, and Steel common, ⅛.

Steel soon recovered its loss. St. Paul also recovered its fractional decline of a point. Opened ½ up. The gain in leading gained fractionally after opening unchanged.

The Curb market was irregular.

Despite the suits brought in London charging that an illegal pool was formed for speculation in shares of the American Marconi stock after the Titanic disaster this issue was only ⅝ lower on the Curb.

Americans in London drooped.

Ripley Expects Freight Raise.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison road expects that Eastern roads will be permitted to increase freight rates, and thinks some of them will go into the hands of receivers if it is not granted, he said.

"I believe Eastern roads will be asserted the small increase in freight rates for which they have applied. However, I know they need it. It is unfair to argue that the commission has allowed an 8 mile increase on all Eastern roads because in justice this may be true, both in respect to it unfair. However, it has been small compared with the decrease.

"Practically railroads have gone on increasing wages and making higher price for material without any corresponding increase for rates, and I contend that dispassionate, common sense relief in the way of freight increases it is inevitable that some, if not many roads, must be operated by receivers.

"The political trend of the United States is not at all what the founders of the country intended. An intelligent public sentiment is used to rule, now those elected simply do as the crowd dictates. There is much to be said in Wilson's favor. I indorse his tariff bill and the Democratic platform. His currency plan will also be beneficial. Those features eliminate much that is disquieting in the political outlook."

New Balkan War Alarm.

The fear that there is going to be more fighting in the Balkans has made the London stock market feverish today. The London financial correspondent of Hearst newspapers cables:

"The Balkan deadlock is again acute and full of fresh alarms. But for universal confidence in Sir Edward Grey, another war scare would be possible.

Seven Reasons Why the State Board of Health Should Be Reorganized—Read Them and Then Write Your Senator to Support the Bill Framed For This Purpose

The AMERICAN gives herein seven reasons why the State Board of Health should be reorganized by the bill which comes up for a second reading in the House today:

1. It is not the Board of Health over which Dr. Harrington presided. Dr. Harrington was a brave, aggressive man. But he is gone, and with him has gone the virility of the board.

2. Some of its members try to serve two masters. As the engineering member of the Board of Health, Hiram F. Mills is supposed to protect the public against those interests, the tendency of whose business is to impair the public health. But Mr. Mills also receives big fees from corporations which pollute the waters of the Merrimac River, to the danger of the health of the people along its banks.

3. The Board of Health has rendered neither active nor passive, either direct nor indirect assistance to those who have been fighting during this session for an improvement in our pure food laws. The Legislature has recently passed six bills improving these laws in the interest of the public health. They were necessary or the Legislature would not have passed them, and if they were necessary the Board of Health should have led in the struggle to enact them. BUT THE BOARD OF HEALTH DID NOTHING AT ALL. It rejoiced in its ability to interpret its powers as wanting in initiative in respect to this pure food legislation.

4. It did not lift its voice or pen in support of the following bills:
   (a) To forbid the sale of rotten eggs.
   (b) To forbid the sale of debased sausages.
   (c) To forbid the sale to children of candy with alcohol.
   (d) Representative Sullivan's cold storage egg bill.
   (e) The bill to prevent the injection of water into butter.
   (f) The bill to strike out the word "knowingly" from laws governing the sale of tainted food, the joker of most pure food legislation.

5. It has permitted Massachusetts to fall behind the other States and the national government in the protection which this Commonwealth gives to the purity and wholesomeness of the food we eat. Massachusetts leads in so many other of her public functions that our backwardness in respect to our pure food laws makes the backwardness and the incompetence of our present Board of Health more marked.

6. The death rate in Massachusetts from preventable diseases is unnecessarily high. The Board of Health pleads in defence against the imputation involved in this high death rate that it has not the necessary powers to be entirely efficient in dealing with our health situation. But why has it not obtained these powers? What has it done to get them?

7. A more powerful Board of Health is needed. The present members do not want more power and are not capable of wielding it if they had it. We want men on the Board of Health who will make this important public service their principal concern and not a mere incident in the day's work and pleasure.

The Real Stockholders of the Boston & Maine Should Wake Up—The State Will Help Them if They Help Themselves

The stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad are organizing to PROTECT THEMSELVES against the present New Haven Railroad management. These gentlemen cannot represent the stockholders of the Boston & Maine. If they do their duty by the New Haven, they will have their hands full.

They should not attempt to represent the stockholders of the Boston & Maine, both because their task is sufficiently great on the New Haven and because the interests of these TWO COMPETING RAILROADS ARE NOT IDENTICAL.

It is high time that the MINORITY STOCKHOLDERS of the Boston & Maine showed some SIGNS OF LIFE and took some steps to protect THEMSELVES and their railroad property. If ever men and women have been despoiled, ignored and flouted, they are those men and women who have put their money in the Boston & Maine stock.

They have seen their stock FALL in the market from a point above 190 to a point below 60. They have seen RUINOUS CONTRACTS like those with the American Express Company and the Hampden Railroad foisted upon their railroad at a loss of more than $700,000 a year or 2 per cent. of their stock in the one contract, and at a loss not yet calculable in the second contract.

They have seen the natural business of their railroad SECRETLY STOLEN from it to build up the profits of their competitor, the New Haven Railroad. They have seen their rolling stock depreciated, their fences fallen into DISREPAIR, their culverts and bridges UNSTRENGTHENED and their rails UNRENEWED.

They have seen their trains and their switching points UNDERMANNED, their freight movements PARALYZED and their freight CONGESTED, side-tracked and lost. They have suffered every conceivable form of railroad mismanagement.

The stockholders of the Boston & Maine have a railroad property which has paid good dividends for half a century. It serves the same territory it has served all these years. The same hills are there. The same valleys are there and those valleys are watered by the same streams. Population is greater. Commerce is greater. Manufacturing is greater. And the cost of operating a railroad does not increase in proportion to the increase of its business.

There is no reason in the world WHY the Boston & Maine cannot be a PROFITABLE railroad today.

It CAN be and WILL be when the stockholders who have its interest at heart take control of it once more and throw off its UNNATURAL BURDENS and repudiate its ruinous and fraudulent contracts and recover the business which was stolen from it to the West, and retrieve its credit.

Let the stockholders ORGANIZE at once. Let them invite the State to exercise its reserved right to acquire the stock now held by the Boston Railroad Holding Company, through which the New Haven maintains its present control.

LET THOSE WHO PUT THEIR MONEY INTO THIS RAILROAD WAKE UP. THE STATE WILL HELP THEM IF THEY WILL HELP THEMSELVES.

"Boys, I've been having a good laugh at my old friend, the Common People! He's inspecting his merchant marine! Look at his face! Har, har! Ah, Johnny, when it comes to real sailoring you and Elihu are the boys. You're the captain of the good ship 'Senatorial Bribery,' and Elihu has been navigating my yacht, the 'Black Buccaneer,' for years! By the way, I see Theodore is loose again! This time it's a libel suit with brass bands and cowboy trimmings! Poor Theodore! I wonder if there's any way of making him realize that he is rapidly getting into the same class with Doc Cook! Incidentally I notice that my friends, the corporations, are beating it for the cyclone cellar again! It's getting so that those poor guys have to spend half their time underground!"

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

THERE are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best shall come back to you.
Give love, and love to your heart will flow,
A strength to your inmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.
For life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what you are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

Variety, variety!
You were once the spice of living.
Sobriety's propriety
Found change great joy was giving.
But now it's sad to see life walsk
In the mile-a-minute range:
But the critical glance grows a full-moon dink
When told, "Just keep the change."

And brand our conscience to our dealing,
The Ten Commandments will not budge,
And stealing will continue stealing.

Writes on Housewives and the Art of Housekeeping

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE reign of the good housekeeper is only just beginning. Every month sees some new invention that helps to diminish the slavery of housework. Housekeeping has for ages been an art, and, as with all arts, its practioners range in their abilities from mediocrity through fair talent up to positive genius.

Now housekeeping is becoming a science, and science has this advantage over art—that it tends to equalize abilities by bringing results through mechanical and automatic methods which anybody can employ.

Kitchen Known as the Theatre of the French Housewife

For a plain male citizen, who knows little about the secrets of the kitchen, it is a wonderful revelation to read the articles in GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE and to look at the devices there shown which relate to this fast-growing science. Almost everything about a house can now be done with half the expenditure of labor and time formerly required. To be without this knowledge and these inventions is not merely to be behind the times, but it is to live harder, less well and more expensively than there is any necessity for.

The kitchen is the stomach of the house, and, upon the way in which it performs its functions, the welfare of the whole establishment depends. My attention has just been called to a model French kitchen. All the world has long looked up to France as the ideal home of culinary art, and it is evident that she does not intend to be left behind in the modern transformation of this art into a science.

The kitchen has also been called "the theatre of the French housewife," and this theatre is becoming really a fascinating place with its display of electrical ranges, scientific lamps, automatic grinders, mills and churns, Pasteur filters, coffee makers, ice-cream freezers, devices for easily getting rid of vast substances, porcelain sinks as white and clean as Alpine snow, scouring machines, hitors, convenient cupboards, and all the glittering array of nickel, silver, copper, aluminum, bronze and granite-ware utensils that fill the room with bright reflections.

Mistress Goes to Kitchen Not to Visit but as a Helper

One of the great charms of a French kitchen is that the mistress is frequently to be seen there, not merely as a visitor, but as a helper and director. She inspires her servants by her presence, and by her advice. She does not pretend to live in another world than theirs. They know that she understands their business as well as they do themselves, and even better. She can take their place if necessary. This is as true of the rich as of the relatively poor.

The economy of the French people has long been world-famous, and nowhere is it more brilliantly displayed than in the kitchen. A French family, as has often been said, could live, and live well, upon the waste of many American families. And the exercise of this economy—this art of getting all the good out of things—fascinates those who practice it. It has the charm of all applied knowledge. They not only get all that is good—they make the good better. I know many a little country inn in France where, for three or four francs, wine included (a franc is worth 20 cents), one can have a really better meal than can be had in a big American city for two or three dollars.

And yet meats, and similar things, cost about as much in France as they do here. The secret lies in economical management and good cooking. It is no wonder that a first-rate French cook can command in this country a salary of $5,000, or even more. And if he, or she, remains on this side of the Atlantic the economical skill learned at home, more than half the salary is saved to the employer.

We Should Pattern After French to Learn Economical Wisdom

One thing to be noticed in the French kitchen is that there is usually no false economy in the choice of apparatus. Everything is of the best, or at least good and substantial. The kitchen, in its way, is as well furnished as the parlor. You may be sure that this spells economy in the end, for if it did not it would not be found in France.

I have often been surprised on entering a house in France, which, in America, might be taken as the abode of people in very humble circumstances, to find a far larger and better-stocked kitchen than many rather pretentious houses possess here, accompanied by a culinary skill in its mistress which would earn her a large salary on this side of the ocean.

No doubt we shall learn this economical wisdom in good time—and the sooner the better.

PHILIPPINE!

By PERCY SHAW

ON the shores of far Japan,
Of romantic old Japan,
Gazing to the Eastward stands the little yellow man,
With his eye upon the ocean, strain ing wide as he can see,
(It may sound paradoxic, but it's very clear to me),
He is waiting, waiting, waiting,
With a smile ingratiating,
For a game with Uncle Sammy, of the countenance serene,
For a game with Uncle Sammy, called the game of Philippine.

Near the banks of old Japan,
Mystic, wonderful Japan,
With his feet upon a dreadnought stands the patient yellow man;
And he looks with loving favor on her rifles and her guns,
With a stern appreciation of the big and little ones.
He is waiting, waiting, waiting,
With a bashfulness at stating
When he hopes to tackle Sammy of the self-sufficient mien
In the fascinating pastime called the game of Philippine.

IN the cities of Japan,
Templed cities of Japan,
With his hand upon his rifle stands the little yellow man;
And his heart is beating steady and his muscles are in tune,
For he thinks the word is coming and he hopes it may be soon.
He is waiting, waiting, waiting,
With a fever in his hasting,
For to Heaven Born a whisper, thrilling whisper long and keen,
"Oh, my children, up and at them in the game of Philippine."

In the byways of Japan,
Scented highways of Japan,
With his eye upon the sunrise, stands the little yellow man,
And his prayer goes up unceasing to the Gods that he adores,
For the orders to go steaming to those balmy Island shores.
He is waiting, waiting, waiting,
With a deal of cogitating,
On the art of being ready and of hitting swift and clean,
Even in a deft amusement like the game of Philippine.
